1988 was first year since 1980 that the CBA Convention was held in the Denver area. The annual CBA Convention was held in different areas of Colorado to try to stimulate attendance. After seven years the board decided to move the convention back to the Denver area.

A two-session clinic by Jamey Aebersold “Jazz Improvisation for Teachers” was a highlight of this convention. Brass Beat with director, Joy Caylor, performed a Jazz Reading Session. The USAFA Falconaires performed in concert.

Many fine clinics/clinicians featured during this three day convention.
